LOYALIST ARMY PLANNING FIRST MAJOR DRIVE

Government Authorizes Farm Seizure in War Against Fascist Enemies

REBEL LAND FORFEITED

Loyalists Believe Rebels Severely Battered In Two-Day Fight

MADRID, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Loyalist military tacticians, accompanied by government leaders, left for the Guadarrama mountains today to plan their first major offensive against rebels threatening Madrid.

They intend to strike hardest in the Somosierra Pass, directly north of the capital, it was understood, with co-operative attacks in two other dominating passes.

Persisting ruthlessly in the political war against its right wing Fascist enemies, the government today empowered the Agrarian reform institute to seize all farms of more than 100 hectares (247 acres) in extent in five provinces which have been abandoned, or on which work has been paralyzed because of the owners' absence.

Rebel Land Taken

This will be a blanket sweep of all rebel agricultural holdings in the new Castille region.

Land seized will be parcelled out to the land-starved peasants of the area.

There were strong indications here that the drive which the government plans in the Guadarramas may be the most important of the entire rebellion.

Additional reports from the fighting zone make it apparent that the loyalists believe they have battered the rebels severely in two days of fighting.

Position Strong

There is no doubt that they believe their position so strong that they can essay the first real big scale attack. There has been much bloody fighting in the mountains since the rebels first took a stand there, and offensives have been undertaken by both sides. Each, however, has been a sectoral one covering one of the three great passes which dominate the city's roads to the north.

LEADERS REPORT PROGRESS FOR POWER PROJECT

Hope that the South Central Ohio Rural Electrification Co-operative will be able to present its plans to officials of the R. E. A. in Washington, D. C. within the next few weeks was expressed Wednesday evening when leaders from Pickaway, Fairfield and Perry counties gathered in Lancaster. Forrest Brown, county manager, and M. G. Stealy and Ralph Head attended from Pickaway County. Mr. Brown said Thursday that the Project is moving fast in all three counties.

The next meeting will be Aug. 19.

JACOB BOWERS, WIFE HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bowers, 474 N. Court street, are in serious condition in a Decatur, Ill., hospital after an automobile accident late Wednesday. Mr. Bowers is a retired farmer.

Their son, George, of Walnut township, left for Decatur Thursday as soon as he was notified of the accident.

The extent of injuries suffered by the widely known couple has not been learned, although their son was informed they were critically hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowers were enroute to Decatur and other Illinois cities to visit relatives. They were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Dorothy, a teacher in a school near Toledo, and Miss Nelle Oesterle, of Walnut township, who intended to visit a brother near Decatur. Miss Bowers and Miss Oesterle were injured, too, it was reported, but not so seriously as Mr. and Mrs. Bowers.

All four persons are in the Decatur hospital.

The accident happened, George Bowers was told, when his father tried to pass a truck and struck a culvert at the side of the road.

The $13,500 estate of Mrs. Harriett W. Allen is divided among her granddaughter, Harriett Harman, W. Mound street, and her three children, N. Turney Weldon, Mrs. Adelaide Harman and Mrs. Coit Blacker in the will filed in probate court Thursday.

The property is estimated to be worth $6,000 in personal property and $7,500 in real estate.

The granddaughter, a daughter of Mrs. Harman, will receive $1,000 in cash and all of her grandmother's jewelry and silverware.

The daughters, Mrs. Harman and Mrs. Blacker, are bequeathed the W. Mound street property and all household furnishings. The remainder of the property is to be divided equally among the three children.

Turney Weldon and Coit Blacker are appointed executors without bond. Appraisers are J. P. Noecker, A. J. Lyle and John S. Boggs. The will was drawn Dec. 14, 1932 and witnessed by Lemuel B. Weldon and Miss Hulda M. Redd.

Mrs. Allen, widow of Dr. H. C. Allen, died two weeks ago in a Cleveland hospital.

LEWIS HURLS DEFY FOLLOWING UNION OUSTER

Leader of Rebels Prepares Campaign to Obtain 4,000,000 Backers

ULTIMATUM REJECTED

Bitterly Hostile Groups Gird For National Tilt for Supremacy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Irreconcilable difference split organized labor into two bitterly hostile groups today, ending 50 years of union solidarity.

The committee for industrial organization, with 1,000,000 members, challenged openly the supremacy of 2,500,000 workers remaining loyal to the craft union policy of the American Federation of Labor.

Definitely rejecting the A. F. of L. executive council's ultimatum that the C. I. O. unions disband within 30 days or be suspended, John L. Lewis announced plans for an intensive organization drive to recruit 4,000,000 new members.

No Peace Overture

The 30 days "grace," it was explained, was not a peace overture, but is provided for in the federation constitution.

Climaxing nine months of heated controversy, the council late yesterday tossed out of the federation unions comprising nearly one-third of its membership. Final decision was left to the federation's national convention in November, but there was little doubt of the outcome.

Although not formally seceding from the federation, the Lewis faction clearly indicated its intention of continuing its independent organization drive in effect setting up a rival labor organization.

Green Stands Firm

William Green, A. F. of L. president, in announcing the 10 C. I. O. unions have been found guilty of dual unionism and fomenting insurrection, warned:

"They may choose whether they will remain with the American Federation of Labor or cast their lot with the dual, rival organization. The decision of the council means they cannot belong to both organizations at the same time."

SUIT INTENDED BY HUSBAND OF ELEANOR HOLM

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Art Jarrett, husband of Eleanor Holm, backstroke champion, barred by the Olympic Committee because of alleged drinking, said today that he would sue the committee.

"I have no idea what amount, no idea what court and no idea of the precise basis but I definitely intend to sue," he said.

American friends of Jarrett have been trying to dissuade him from such action. Jarrett's inability to contact Avery Brundage, president of the committee, infuriated him.

Mrs. Jarrett would not comment on the proposed suit. She plans to accept an offer from the 20th Century Film Co.

Greyhound Plunges Out of Control, Destroys Guard Rail and Overturns

OHIOAN MEETS DEATH

Unidentified Woman Taken From Wreckage—Driver Only Slightly Hurt

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Aug. 6.—Two persons were killed, and 13 others injured early today when a Greyhound bus went out of control on William Penn highway and overturned.

The dead were Joseph Kiss, 48, of Youngstown, Ohio, and an unidentified woman.

State troopers said they believed the wreckage of the bus, piled on the side of the hilly, rain-swept highway, held the body of another victim.

The accident happened near Water Street, 16 miles west of here. The big bus, driven by George Kukich of Pittsburgh, and enroute from Chicago to New York, swerved out of control on a grade, the rear end sweeping around and ripping out 14 posts in a guard fence.

With passengers screaming, the coach rocketed through the fence and turned over. The top was ripped off.

Rushed to Hospital

The injured were rushed to a Huntingdon hospital, where several were reported in critical condition. The bodies of Kiss and the unidentified woman, about 32, were removed to the funeral home. Attendants there said clothing of both victims was torn from the bodies.

Six Passengers, Two Pilots of Big Plane Crushed Near Lambert Field

GROUND FOG IS BLAMED

Searching Party Discovers Wreckage of Ship, 16 Miles From St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Five minutes after a new, latest model transport plane left Lambert-St. Louis field last night, it crashed, killing six passengers and two pilots. Early today a searching party came on the wreckage and made the first report of the tragedy.

Every occupant of the plane died. It crashed a few minutes after it lost radio contact with the airport, smashing down on a farm 16 miles north of St. Louis and three miles north of the main weather conditions while not clear, were good. Airport and state officials could give no reason for the disaster.

The bodies were taken to Clinton.

A. S. Couch, aeronautical inspector for the department of commerce, told the United Press that a "ground fog" probably caused the crash.

"Preliminary examination indicates," he said, "that there was no mechanical failure. A thick fog fog probably was responsible. Flying conditions were fair. The fog was low, and confined to the vicinity of the Missouri river."

Coming in from New Orleans on schedule, the plane took off from Chicago and lost contact with local airport. Early today word of the crash was received by telephone from farmers of the district.

Flying conditions were excellent, company officials reported, in striving to find an explanation for the crash. It was slightly cloudy with an overcast sky, but weather conditions presented no unusual problem, it was said.

It was determined that the crash occurred not later than five minutes after it departed.

Report Delayed

There was some official curiosity regarding delay in reporting the accident. It occurred before midnight, but word of it did not reach the coroner's office of St. Louis county—outside the district of St. Louis—until 2:30 a. m.

Airline officials said the accident was reported as soon as information reached the airport.

The dead:

W. S. Bartlett, 6930 South Shore Drive, Chicago.

D. R. McDavitt, 55, Bellevue avenue, Chicago.

George Grashaber, 435 Lennox, Oak Park, Ill.

C. B. Wright, 18 East Hickory street, Hinsdale, Ill.

A. R. Holt, 24 Mill (CQ) avenue, Boston, Mass.

Vernon Omie, Memphis, Tenn.

Carl Zier, Chicago, pilot.

Russell Mossman, New Orleans, co-pilot.

Ten Passenger Ship

The plane was a new 10-passenger Lockheed-Electra, described as the most modern of transport ships. It was regularly scheduled between New Orleans and Memphis, and left New Orleans yesterday at 5:30 p. m. It was scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 12:55 a. m. today.

Airline officials placed a squad of guards around the plane preventing photographers from taking pictures.

The department of commerce announced it would investigate the crash.

Air line officials said they were responsible for the circle of guards around the wrecked plane. They insisted that the plane carried a regular consignment of airmail and that it was necessary to protect it until it was delivered to the postal department.

The scene of the accident, the rolling hills adjacent to the crash site.

MAYOR VICTOR IN VERBAL TILT BEFORE COUNCIL

Mayor W. J. Graham and Third Ward Councilman Harry Steinhauer engaged in a brief verbal tilt at council meeting Wednesday evening during the discussion of purchase of a new automobile for the police department.

The board of control, comprised of mayor, safety director and service director, opened bids Wednesday afternoon, but since none of the bids received contained bond of $100 to assure carrying out the contract for delivery of the car, the officials decided to ask council what to do.

Councilman Steinhauer said: "If the city buys a new police car I hope it is not used for family excursions or fishing trips."

Mayor Graham, angered, replied: "If that has been during my administration I would appreciate having the councilman say when and where, and I shall take immediate action."

To which Mr. Steinhauer responded: "It wasn't during the present administration."

Council suggested the board of Control purchase the new automobile regardless of failure to provide bond.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Aug. 6.—Two persons were killed, and 13 others injured early today when a Greyhound bus went out of control on William Penn highway and overturned.

The dead were Joseph Kiss, 48, of Youngstown, Ohio, and an unidentified woman.

State troopers said they believed the wreckage of the bus, piled on the side of the hilly, rain-swept highway, held the body of another victim.

The accident happened near Water Street, 16 miles west of here. The big bus, driven by George Kukich of Pittsburgh, and enroute from Chicago to New York, swerved out of control on a grade, the rear end sweeping around and ripping out 14 posts in a guard fence.

With passengers screaming, the coach rocketed through the fence and turned over. The top was ripped off.

Rushed to Hospital

The injured were rushed to a Huntingdon hospital, where several were reported in critical condition. The bodies of Kiss and the unidentified woman, about 32, were removed to the funeral home. Attendants there said clothing of both victims was torn from the bodies.

RESIDENT OF CITY FOR 83 YEARS DIES AT HOME

Miss Martha Lane, 90, a resident of Circleville since she was seven years old, died at her home at Main street and Lancaster pike at 6 p. m. Wednesday. Miss Lane, one of the city's oldest residents, had lived alone for many years.

Death followed an illness of two months. Miss Lane was a native of Portsmouth, born Oct. 24, 1845. She came to Circleville with her parents when she was a child, and resided in the same house from the time she removed to this city until her death.

Miss Lane was a seamstress nearly her entire life, having sewed during her younger years for many of the best families of the city and county. She never married.

Her only survivors are a nephew, Meinhard Lane of Ashville, who is seriously ill, and three grand nephews, Harry, George and Emmanuel Lane, all of Circleville.

The funeral will be Friday at 10:30 a. m. at the Rinehart Funeral Home with Rev. T. C. Harper of the United Brethren church officiating. Burial will be in the family lot in Forest cemetery.

light all-night rain Wednesday. The gauge of Dr. H. R. Clarke, government weatherman, recorded .22 of an inch of rainfall.

The dry weather which has prevailed all summer has resulted in much light and unfinished stock being offered for sale on the county live stock market. Harry J. Briggs, service manager for the Farm Bureau Co-operative, said Thursday that he believed the rains of the last few days have been sufficient to grow grass for feed. Many cows have been sold because of the pasture shortage.

$25,000 ROAD CONTRACT LET BY SWEETMAN

A program of Pickaway county road improvements in which 158,600 square yards of highway will be surface-treated with an oil and crushed stone mixture was revealed Thursday by Howard Sweetman, county engineer. Mr. Sweetman has let the contract for providing all materials and doing all work to T. D. Van Camp Co. of Columbus.

When the program will start has not been determined.

The county will pay the Van Camp Co. $25,024.55 to complete the work.

Seven roads will be included in the program including the Ashville-Fairfield road No. 28, 16,000 square yards; Williamsport-Chillicothe road No. 23, 10,000 square yards; Circleville-London road No. 3; 17,600 square yards; Circleville-Kingston road No. 3, 19,800 square yards; Circleville-Stoutsville road No. 40, 25,000 square yards, and New Holland-Clarksburg road No. 27, 52,000 square yards.

Crushed stone and gravel to be used in the series of treatments will weigh 4,369 tons and, at $1.75 a ton, will cost $7,645.75.

OIL MAN RAPS DAVEY'S PLAN TO CUT FOOD TAX

FINDLAY, O., Aug. 6—(UP)—The sales tax was "the most honest, straight-forward form of taxation the people have ever been called upon to pay," by John L. Marsh of Findlay, secretary of the Ohio Oil Industries Committee, here last night.

Marsh proposed that Gov. Davey's proposal to cut the food tax be "unsound." Such a move, he said, would result in a tax loss of $12,000,000 (M), which the state cannot afford to lose.

COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT EMPLOYS AIDES

Increased clerical work in the office of the county superintendent has resulted in two clerks being employed as aides to the superintendent. Howell, superintendent, announced that Miss Betty Mossbarger had been named Thurston assistant. Ohio School Foundation has caused Mr. McDowell's work to be increased about 25 per cent. Miss Ina Klingensmith, secretary in the office for a number of years, resigned last week.

TRUCK DRIVER MISUSES TAGS AND PAYS $25

Misuse of a dealer's license plates resulted in a fine of $25 and costs for W. M. Qualls of Proctorville, Rt. 1, Wednesday, following his arrest by Neal Smith, state highway patrolman. Qualls paid the fine and costs to Squire H. O. Eveland. The dealer's tags were being used on Qualls' privately owned truck.

Six Passengers, Two Pilots of Big Plane Crushed Near Lambert Field

GROUND FOG IS BLAMED

Searching Party Discovers Wreckage of Ship, 16 Miles From St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6—(UP)—Five minutes after a new, latest model transport plane left Lambert-St. Louis field last night, it crashed, killing six passengers and two pilots. Early today a searching party came on the wreckage and made the first report of the tragedy.

Every occupant of the plane died. It crashed a few minutes after it lost radio contact with the airport, smashing down on a farm 16 miles north of St. Louis and three miles north of the field, weather conditions while not ideal, were good. Airport and airline officials could give no reason for the disaster.

The bodies were taken to Clayton.

A. S. Couch, aeronautical inspector for the department of commerce, told the United Press that a "ground fog" probably caused the crash.

Fox Is Blamed

"Preliminary examination indicates," he said, "that there was no mechanical failure. A thick ground fog probably was responsible. Flying conditions were fair. The fog was low, and confined to the vicinity of the Missouri river."

Coming in from New Orleans on schedule, the plane took off for Chicago and lost contact with the local airport. Early today word of the crash was received by telephone from farmers of the district.

Flying conditions were excellent, company officials reported, in striving to find an explanation for the crash. It was slightly cloudy with an overcast sky, but weather conditions presented no unusual problem, it was said.

It was determined that the crash occurred not later than five minutes after it departed.

Report Delayed

There was some official curiosity regarding delay in reporting the accident. It occurred before midnight, but word of it did not reach the corner's office of St. Louis county—outside the district of St. Louis—until 2:30 a. m.

Airline officials said the accident was reported as soon as information reached the airport.

The dead:

W. S. Bartlett, 6930 South Shore Drive, Chicago.

D. R. McDavitt, 55, Bellevue avenue, Chicago.

George Grashaber, 435 Lennox, Oak Park, Ill.

C. B. Wright, 18 East Hickory street, Hinsdale, Ill.

A. R. Holt, 24 Milt (CQ) avenue, Boston Mass.

Vernon Omie, Memphis, Tenn.

Carl Zier, Chicago, pilot.

Russell Mossman, New Orleans, co-pilot.

Ten Passenger Ship

The plane was a new 10-passenger Lockheed-Electra, described as the most modern of transport ships. It was regularly scheduled between New Orleans and Memphis, and left New Orleans yesterday at 5:30 p. m. It was scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 12:55 a. m. today.

Airline officials placed a squad of guards around the plane preventing photographers from taking pictures.

The department of commerce announced it would investigate the crash.

Air line officials said they were responsible for the circle of guards around the wrecked plane. They insisted that the plane carried a regular consignment of airmail and that it was necessary to protect it until it was delivered or surrendered to representatives of the postal department.

The scene of the accident was in the rolling hills adjacent to the

REDUCES EXPENSES FOR COMING YEAR

Circleville will need approximately $101,000 to operate through 1937 and expects revenues of $107,000 to be placed in the treasury during the 12-month period. The figures were disclosed Wednesday evening when council voted approval of the tentative budget as drawn up by Clerk Fred Nicholas and the finance committee headed by Ben H. Gordon.

The figures set up by the city officials are slightly lower than those for 1936.

The city's budget will be submitted to the county budget commission comprised of Prosecutor Ray W. Davis, Auditor Forrest Short, and Treasurer R. G. Colville.

Nearly half of the $101,000 expenditure is listed in the general operating fund for which $47,295.60 is set aside. The amount is $1,600 less than that appropriated for 1935.

Other amounts expected to be needed during the next year are library, $5,120; Berger hospital, $18,100, lower by $480; street maintenance and repair, $5,276; gasoline tax for street repair, $8,000, less by $1,420; sinking fund, $17,144.08, higher than the 1936 figure by $300.

The city's bonded indebtedness is listed at $96,300 of which $41,000 is included for Berger hospital. Most of the remainder is for sewers, although a $9,500 debt remains on the five-year old fire truck.

General property taxes are expected to provide the bulk of revenue needed for the year's operation, $25,700. The classified property tax is expected to add $6,500 more, and $5,200 is anticipated from the permit. Paying patients at the hospital will pour $12,000 more into the treasury, councilmen believe, while another sum of $10,000 is looked forward to from the Ohio sales tax.

CITY ENGINEER TO PLAN STREET REPAIR PROJECT

City Engineer David Courtright was instructed by council Wednesday evening to complete surveys preparatory to submitting a project for repair on several streets where complaints have been made concerning standing water and other inconveniences.

Included in the program will be Watt street, one half block off Court street, where for many years water has stood at the alley following rains; S. Pickaway street in the vicinity of the Circle City Dairy, the vicinity of the Second Baptist church on Mill street, the vicinity of the Goeller broom factory, and Scoto street between Pinckney and High streets where water stands.

Courtright was instructed, too, to complete all surveys necessary preparatory to taking action on the Smith ditch, an improvement in the south end of the city which has been hanging fire through many councils.

GRAHAM AGREES CASKEY KNOWS EARLY HISTORY

A temporary split occurred in the city's official family Wednesday evening. Mayor W. J. Graham and his genial safety director, Charles O. Caskey, swung their arms about like windmills. Their gestures followed an argument that shook the rafters of the city building.

But it was all over a trivial matter, and lasted only a moment. Caskey insisted the mayor could not name four town pumps.

Graham said he could, and started to support his statement.

"There was the sewer in front of Fred Warner's," said his honor. "That was a private sewer and doesn't count," replied Caskey. "Well, how about that one at Washington and Watt streets?" queried the mayor. "That was private, too," countered the safety chief. Graham gave up in disgust.

"I'll name the four town pumps, built and paid for by the city," went on Mr. Caskey. "First, there was the one in front of the old Washington bakery on W. Main street; then, there was that one in front of the William Hegele residence on E. Main street. The third was in front of the location now occupied by Palm's restaurant, and the third on S. Court street between the properties of Charles Dresbach and Charles Gilmore where the old Valley House stood."

Graham agreed, finally admitting the safety director knew a little more about early history than he did. Both are Circleville natives.

RAIL CROSSING GUARDS TO BE CITY MANDATE

Proper Safety Gates and Wig Wag Signals Demanded of Two Railroads

WATCHMAN REQUESTED

City Solicitor Instructed to Inform Utilities of Needed Safeguards

Immediate action of the Norfolk and Western and Pennsylvania railroads, operating in Circleville, to protect lives and property of Circleville and Pickaway county residents was demanded by council Wednesday evening after its safety committee headed by Frank A. Marion made several recommendations. Other members of the committee are C. O. Leist and Harry Steinhauser. Solicitor Carl C. Leist was instructed to write to the legal departments of the two utilities explaining what council expected. Mr. Marion asked that gates now operated at the Mound, Main and High street crossings of the N. and W. be moved to protect the sidewalks now open, and that wig-wag signals be placed at all three west side crossings to be used the 16 hours that no watchmen are on duty. At present only a sign "Watchman Not on Duty" is available for protection at night. Wig-wags at the S. Scioto street double-track crossing are suggested.

Signals Needed Wig-wags at the Pennsylvania crossings in the east side where shifting trains are busy all night servicing the Eshelman mill were recommended by the service committee. Streets to be protected under the plan include S. Pickaway, Clinton and E. Main, where the Pennsylvania crosses Route 56.

"The committee believes," Mr. Marion stated, "that motorists of Circleville and Pickaway county, and others traveling should be provided more adequate protection by our railroads. "The busy Norfolk and Western with four crossings along Western avenue, has watchmen on duty only eight hours of the day. The remainder of the time a sign is placed at the sides of the tracks. Few motorists believe in signs any more, so we believe wig-wags are the next best things to watchmen. All motorists have learned to watch for wig-wags."

Watchman Requested Council is in favor of 24-hour watchman service at the Main street crossing, and it is believed such a suggestion by the railroad would be approved. If such a safety measure is put into effect, council would be willing, it was intimated, to have 24-hour wig-wag service installed at the Mound and High street crossings where watchmen are now stationed eight hours daily. Council does not want to put any safety program into effect that will result in watchmen losing their positions. Under the plan suggested, that

ASTOR, THORPE STRIFE RENEWED

(Continued from Page One) in Tampa, Fla., said to be able to swear Dr. Thorpe lived there with Mrs. Miles as man and wife in 1926.

The child custody battle, one of four instituted by the actress, is expected to be overshadowed when the marriage annulment phase is opened. If the marriage should be set aside, the divorce, child custody and property settlement involved in the April, 1932, lawsuit would be invalidated, it was said.

The surprise move by Thorpe's counsel yesterday made a complete denial of Miss Astor's charges that he "beat and intimidated her into submitting to his divorce terms." It was seen as a counter attack to efforts of Miss Astor's counsel to force the doctor to reply to deposition questions about whether he was ever married to or divorced from Mrs. Miles. The doctor has been cited to appear in court Monday to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for refusing to answer the questions. Likewise on Monday, the actress is due to go back on the witness stand and face possible reading of more pages from her diary. With playwright George Kaufman already linked to the case by the diary, Hollywood is agog with rumors that many more screen notables will be involved and perhaps subpoenaed to testify. Little Marilyn Thorpe, the pawn in the case and unaware of the turmoil raging about here, daily romps and plays in Miss Astor's Toluca Lake home.

Medical authorities agree that 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 2 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. "The committee believes," Mr. Marion stated, "that motorists of Circleville and Pickaway county, and others traveling should be provided more adequate protection by our railroads."

"The busy Norfolk and Western with four crossings along Western avenue, has watchmen on duty only eight hours of the day. The remainder of the time a sign is placed at the sides of the tracks. Few motorists believe in signs any more, so we believe wig-wags are the next best things to watchmen. All motorists have learned to watch for wig-wags."

Watchman Requested

Council is in favor of 24-hour watchman service at the Main street crossing, and it is believed such a suggestion by the railroad would be approved. If such a safety measure is put into effect, council would be willing, it was intimated, to have 24-hour wig-wag service installed at the Mound and High street crossings where watchmen are now stationed eight hours daily. Council does not want to put any safety program into effect that will result in watchmen losing their positions. Under the plan suggested, that

ASTOR, THORPE STRIFE RENEWED

(Continued from Page One) in Tampa, Fla., said to be able to swear Dr. Thorpe lived there with Mrs. Miles as man and wife in 1926.

The child custody battle, one of four instituted by the actress, is expected to be overshadowed when the marriage annulment phase is opened. If the marriage should be set aside, the divorce, child custody and property settlement involved in the April, 1932, lawsuit would be invalidated, it was said.

The surprise move by Thorpe's counsel yesterday made a complete denial of Miss Astor's charges that he "beat and intimidated her into submitting to his divorce terms." It was seen as a counter attack to efforts of Miss Astor's counsel to force the doctor to reply to deposition questions about whether he was ever married to or divorced from Mrs. Miles.

The doctor has been cited to appear in court Monday to show in contempt for refusing to answer the questions. Likewise on Monday, the actress is due to go back on the witness stand and face possible reading of more pages from her diary. With playwright George Kaufman already linked to the case by the diary, Hollywood is agog with rumors that many more screen notables will be involved and perhaps subpoenaed to testify.

Little Marilyn Thorpe, the pawn in the case and unaware of the turmoil raging about her, daily romps and plays in Miss Astor's Toluca Lake home.

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of urinary gings backache, leg pains, loss of energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 2 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. UNION PARTY'S PETITION FOR ELECTION FILED

Establishment of New Ohio
Political Party Object of 345,133 Signers

LEGAL HURDLE FACED

Challenge of Authority for Movement Hurdled by Opposing Factions

COLUMBUS, Aug. 6.—(UP)—The Union Party's movement to place a slate of candidates before Ohio and national electors, in opposition to the two major political parties, was well underway in Ohio today after petitions bearing a total of 345,133 signatures were on file with Secretary of State George S. Myers.

The petitions officially seek to establish the new party in Ohio and to nominate William Lemke, of North Dakota, as its candidate for president.

Before Lemke's name can go on the ballot, however, the names must be checked by county election officials to determine if all who signed the petitions are qualified voters. A total of 328,054 names of qualified voters must be filed in order to place the party upon the ballot and secure a party designation.

The Union Party and its candidates will be endorsed by the national convention of the National Union for Social Justice to be held in Cleveland, Aug. 14-16, according to Leroy Diehl, Cleveland's party special representative.

Party officials face the necessity of clearing a legal hurdle in that the petitions filed yesterday have been challenged by legal authorities who contend that the group cannot create a new political party and name the nominees of that party on one petition.

REPAIR ORDER IS ISSUED FOR MEMORIAL HALL

Service Director J. E. Mavis will advertise for bids for construction of new gutters and spouts for Memorial Hall following action of Council Wednesday evening in passing an ordinance under suspension of rules.

Two other ordinances were voted after first reading under suspension of rules. They included instructions to the Board of Control to trade the Ford V-8 now used by the police department in the pending transaction for a new automobile, and that the city hall janitor should serve at Memorial Hall during the 15-day vacation voted Ralph Roby, custodian there. The vacation will be Roby's first with pay in 20 years.

HOSPITAL REPORT APPROVED

The report of Safety Director C. O. Caskey concerning business at Berger hospital the first six months of the year was approved by council Wednesday evening, and passed on file. The report listed receipts and expenditures and the number of patients cared for during the period.

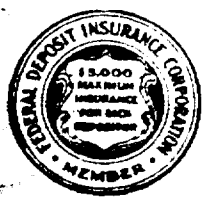

A BANK

is a Necessary Aid to Community Prosperity

One false idea about a bank is that it is an enterprise which profits at the expense of its depositors, its borrowers, and the community.

The truth is that a bank circulates money, quickens the pace of business, and adds to the wealth of the community. Out of these added profits, the bank makes its own living.

If a bank were not useful, people would not use it. The fact that the current of business life flows through the doors of the bank, proves how much its services are needed and appreciated by the people.

Richard Harman Calls Girl Friend As Prize

Visiting the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland, Richard Harman, 160 W. Mound street, won a free long distance telephone call to any point in Ohio from The Ohio Bell Telephone Company's exhibit in the Hall of Progress.

Rich picked a lucky number to win the call and chose to call back home. He talked with Jane Littleton, 125 N. Pickaway street.

Rich is spending the summer with relatives at Geneva-on-the-Lake, about 45 miles east of Cleveland. He expects to be home in September.

Previously Miss Irene Parrett and Miss Emily D. Yates of Circleville took in the big Cleveland fair, and Miss Parrett won a call. She talked with her brother, Wolfson, and expressed enthusiasm over the exposition.

Many Made Daily
Their calls were among the many being made daily from the telephone exhibit. Visitors are invited to make out applications for calls, without charge, and those holding lucky numbers win a chance to talk with friends or relatives anywhere in the state. To demonstrate long distance service, others are furnished receivers and are permitted to listen in on the demonstration calls. As many as 120 persons may enjoy this good-natured "eaves-dropping" during a call.

Listening in is great fun for the spectators. Many humorous incidents arise when the party receiving the call ignores the operator's warning that others are listening.

One of two men who had come to Cleveland won a call to a friend back home. "If we can ditch our wives," he told the friend, "we're going to a good burlesque show."

One man called his wife in Bridgeport and greeted her with forming his mate that a hundred laughing exposition visitors were listening to their call and that maybe it would be better to go into the reason for his presence at the exposition later.

Richard Harman

a breezy "Hello" and announced that he was having a swell time at the exposition.

"What the heck are you doing up there?" replied his wife in a tone that indicated that the gentleman was playing hooky.

Three buggies were damaged in an exciting runaway in the downtown district, March 24, 1911.

The runaway team, hitched to a farm wagon, was owned by Willard Justus, Jackson township. The horses were frightened when in front of the Circleville Hardware store. They collided with three buggies in front of Duffy's grocery and English's restaurant. They were caught when they fell near the First National bank corner.

BELLS MAY PLAY "WHERE IS MY WANDERING BOY"

Ray Davis, prosecuting attorney, has a novel suggestion for the curfew to be put into force soon by Mayor W. J. Graham.

Since the city has taken down its old curfew bell and given it to one of the colored churches, there remain only the fire bell, the town clock and the Foreman chimes in the courthouse. The prosecutor believes an appropriate ceremony would be for Hervey Sweyer, custodian of the chimes, to play "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight" each evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Mayor Graham has not indicated when he will start to enforce the 8:30 o'clock ordinance for children under 15 years of age.

Mrs. Mary Katherine Dick spent Saturday and Sunday with Norma Snyder.

Mrs. Mary Jonson of Cincinnati is spending three weeks with Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Alkire of Five Points.

Mrs. Elsie Smith and family are spending this week with Rev. Scott and family at Lockbourne.

Mr. and Mrs. Trumper Fausnaugh and son Billy are spending their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Winfrigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gooley and family of New Holland spent the week end with Mrs. Gooley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter in Five Points.

Mrs. Beatrice Connolly of near Five Points is spending a few days in Toledo.

Mrs. Josie Thorp who was injured in an auto accident over a week ago is getting along as well as can be expected although her leg has not been set yet.

Mrs. Charles Smith who has been very sick is somewhat improved.

is a Necessary Aid to Community Prosperity

One false idea about a bank is that it is an enterprise which profits at the expense of its depositors, its borrowers, and the community.

The truth is that a bank circulates money, quickens the pace of business, and adds to the wealth of the community. Out of these added profits, the bank makes its own living.

If a bank were not useful, people would not use it. The fact that the current of business life flows through the doors of the bank, proves how much its services are needed and appreciated by the people.

MYSTERY GIRL DECIDES TO LIVE IN TWO HOMES

Louise Pittman-Garner Will Divided Time Between Four "Parents"

LEGAL ACTION HINTED

Couple That Reared Child
Declares "Mixed Infant"
Is Befuddled

ATLANTA, Aug. 5.—(UP).—Louise Madeline Pittman-Garner, 17, temporarily solved for herself today the riddle that baffled King Solomon. She will divide her time between two sets of "parents."

Her solution was not the last work of the puzzle of identity that became hers immediately after birth, for Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pittman, who won her in court then and have kept her since, indicated they would ask a court to decide for the second time whether she is their daughter or that of another couple with whom Louise now wishes to live.

Louise came back last night from the Macon home of her newly claimed "parents" to spend another week with the Pittmans, but she left no doubt that she intended to return to Macon.

Loves Pittmans

"I love the Pittmans," she said, "but I've found my own family and that's where I belong."

The family Louise claimed is that of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Garner, with whom in 1919, again in 1920, and at intervals ever since, the Pittmans had quarreled and fought legal battles over Louise's identity.

Two tired nurses in the maternity ward of an Atlanta hospital precipitated the tragic dispute a few hours after baby girls were born almost simultaneously to Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Pittman.

For a few minutes that day the nurses "mixed" Mrs. Garner's baby and Mrs. Pittman's baby. The nurses said they corrected the mistake immediately. Mrs. Pittman, to whom they gave Louise Madeline, agreed with them.

Garner Child Dies

But Mrs. Garner said the child they brought to her was not her own. She took it from the hospital under protest and even when it died, a year later, of pneumonia, she and her husband put their own name on its gravestone, believing the inscription should read Pittman.

Almost immediately they sued to obtain custody of Louise Madeline. The judge refused the role of Solomon. He ruled that the Pittmans might keep the girl, since they had had her a year, but "when she comes of an age to make a voluntary choice of her own deciding," he ordered, Louise might choose families for herself.

In the intervening years the Pittmans have kept close track of the child. John Garner was more successful than Daniel Pittman and the Garners suggested at intervals that they could do more for Louise than could the Pittmans. Garner is a Central of Georgia railroad engineer and always has drawn good pay. Pittman, a meat cutter, has been employed sporadically; he is unemployed, now.

Child Learns Secret

Louise Madeline never heard of the dispute over her identity until, when she was 9 and the Pittmans were in Florida while Pittman held one of his short-term jobs, a woman acquaintance incautiously revealed the secret to her.

After that the couple wholeheartedly believed her their daughter suffered the grief of having her doubt it. Often, Louise asked to visit the Garners. The Pittmans feared, and refused, until Tuesday.

"We gave our consent then," Pittman said, "because we wanted her to satisfy her own mind. She kissed us good-bye. She didn't mention coming back. We didn't mention we just took it for granted."

Pittman is close to 60. His hair is gray. A newspaper in his hands trembled violently as he talked.

"When we read in the papers of her decision to stay with the Garners, we prayed. I don't know whether we will start court action—we want her to come back of her own accord. But the girl is under age."

Favors Garners

Louise Madeline, a soft voiced, gray eyed girl whose appearance belies the firmness with which she has taken her stand, decided instantly when she met the Garners that she had "come home."

"I look like the Garners, I talk like them and I think like them," she explained. "And I felt that this," with her arm around Mrs. Garner, "certainly was my mother."

She actually does resemble Mrs. Garner and the Garners' three daughters strikingly.

Mrs. Garner brought Louise back to the Pittmans' little house in Atlanta yesterday to "talk things over."

Mrs. Pittman was abed from the shock she had suffered. The two women talked courteously, but with no amity. Louise addressed both as "mother."

Louise wants to live with the Garners during her three remaining high school years, seeing the Pittmans weekends. Then, Mrs. Garner said, she might attend a nursing school.

"Yes," broke in Louise, "I want to be a maternity nurse. I want to work to prevent baby mixups similar to what happened to me."

Pittman and his wife reserved comment on the plan.

They hope that before the week-ends Louise will have changed her mind. Louise was sympathetic, affectionate, but unyielding.

"It's my own folks I want to go to," she said. "I can't help it."

DRUNKENNESS CHARGED IN PETITION FOR DIVORCE

Obie H. Winters, Jackson township farmer, was named defendant in a divorce petition filed in common pleas court Wednesday by Dora Winters.

He is charged with habitual drunkenness, cruelty and neglect. A restraining order to prevent Winters from molesting his wife was granted by Judge J. W. Adkins.

The couple married March 10, 1928. There are no children. In addition to divorce, Mrs. Winters asks her maiden name of Dora Elliott be restored.

Idaho Starts Sentence, Ignoring His Disgrace

BROCKPORT, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(UP)—Idaho, the mongrel pup convicted of contributing to the drowning of a boy, began a two year "jail" term today with a tail wagging display of affection for his jailor and a happy disregard for disgrace.

Unaffected by having the principal of an internationally famous "murder" trial, Idaho went home delightedly with Miss Mary Foubister, executive secretary of the Rochester Dog Protective Association, to be initiated to a "jail" routine under propitious conditions.

Idaho's owner, Victor Fortune, 25, agreed with Miss Foubister that for a week or two the big German shepherd-Airedale mongrel would be better off with her. Miss Foubister had kept Idaho during the 10 days preceding his trial to determine for Justice of the Peace Homer B. Benedict whether he was vicious. Idaho slept nightly at the foot of her bed and convinced her he wasn't.

If Miss Foubister had testified against him, Idaho probably would have been condemned to death yesterday instead of being, as he was, sentenced to confinement until Oct. 1, 1938.

The parents of Russell Maxwell Breeze, 14, whom Idaho was convicted of drowning, bitterly condemned Idaho's sentence. Mrs. Anna Breeze wept while she held another child.

"Brockport should be ashamed of this tomfoolery that values the life of a vicious dog above the life of a child," she said. "They are only going to keep that dog until he kills someone else's child."

But most of Brockport seemed generally to approve of Justice Benedict's ruling.

When Miss Foubister testified for Idaho yesterday auditors in Benedict's emergency courtroom in the old city hall cheered, and when Donald Duff, 15, identified Idaho as the dog that on July 4 clambered on the Breeze boy's back, while the boy was swimming in a canal, the audience hissed.

"Hissing?" asked Justice Benedict in seeming incredulity when a policeman-prosecutor protested. "I didn't hear any. If any one hisses, put him out."

WALK PROJECT CONSIDERED BY CITY COUNCIL

The W. P. A. sidewalk project, which has been progressing slowly but surely in Circleville the last month, came in for its share of discussion Wednesday evening at the council meeting.

Councilman Harry Steinhauser started action when he asked Engineer David Courtright what grade he was following for construction of the walks. Court- right informed the councilman that all grades were being taken from blue prints provided for the purpose.

Steinhauser's question came as a result of a controversy on W. Mound street where a new walk makes an offset of several inches where it meets an old walk in front of adjoining properties.

The discussion ended in council agreeing that Courtright should follow the grades established by ordinance.

LEMKE'S POWER TO HARM

NO third party Presidential candidate ever won an election in this country. Nobody with a scintilla of political-mindedness expects Mr. Lemke to do it. His power to injure the chances, however, of either of the major party candidates is something to which the leaders are giving careful thought. Republicans and Democrats each affect to believe Lemke will pull more votes from the other side. The truth is, they do not know.

Mr. Lemke's ability to harm, whatever it may be, will be registered far more by his popular vote, the vote he takes away from Roosevelt and Landon in respective states, than by any electoral vote he may manage to pick up. The biggest popular vote ever obtained by a minority party candidate was that of Theodore Roosevelt as a Progressive in 1912. It was 27.4 per cent of the vote cast and totaled 4,119,507. President Taft that year 23.2 per cent and 3,484,956 votes. They together exceeded Woodrow Wilson's vote of 6,293,019 by more than 1,300,000, but Roosevelt got only eighty-eight electoral votes and Taft but eight to 435 for Wilson, who received 41.2 per cent of the popular vote.

Back in 1924 the late Robert M. La Follette, father of the present senator, got one vote out of every six cast in the election, but he carried only one state, his own, Wisconsin. There have been parties like the Socialists and the Prohibitionists that have competed in elections year after year and never had a single electoral vote.

Because Lemke has swallowed the Townsend $200-a-month old age pension plan hook, bait and sinker, and will have the formal indorsement of Father Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice at its convention, also in Cleveland, his vote may cut sharply across both major party lines. Townsend's claim of 5,000,000 members, with control of four times that many votes, can be set down as too fantastic for words. In the doubtful column, too, is the estimate of anywhere from 2,000,000 to 9,000,000 non-dues paying members in the Coughlin organization. But the potential voting strength of these groups, if they stick to their leaders, and of Rev. Gerald K. Smith's share-the-wealth outfit is not to be sneezed at.

CROSSING STREAMS

COLONIAL AMERICA journey on foot or horseback and had little use for bridges, so built few. It was the Conestoga wagon, which for a generation or two carried the country's commerce where there were no waterways, that started the nation in the bridge-building business, and it is the automobile which keeps the country continually on the endless job of building bridges and digging tunnels, the modern substitute for bridges.

Until a year or so ago the longest under-

HAMILTON TOLD TO ORGANIZE

WASHINGTON — When vivacious John Hamilton came to Washington just after being made Chairman of the Republican National Committee, he outlined to sagacious Senator McNary of Oregon an elaborate campaign in which he, personally, would speak in every state in the Union. McNary listened carefully, finally said: "But don't forget, John, you're not the candidate."

Now, according to Republican leaders returning from Topeka, this advice has been taken up by the Landon "kitchen cabinet." They have put a muffler on Hamilton's loquacity.

Landon's kitchen cabinet consists of Roy Roberts, managing editor of The Kansas City Star; Oscar Stauffer, college classmate and Kansas newspaper owner; Federal Judge George T. McDermott; and Lacey Haynes, Kansas correspondent of The Kansas City Star.

According to returning GOP chiefs, these intimate advisers held a counsil of war the day after the acceptance speech. Hamilton was present.

During this meeting Hamilton was informed, in a tactful but firm manner, that he was doing too much orating, and that it was the unanimous opinion of the group he could be more effective by concentrating on organization.

Hamilton readily accepted this advice, agreed to do less stump spiling.

UNUSUAL

Hunter S. Marston, elegant ex-vice president of Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, was being interrogated by David Schenker, government counsel in the Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation of investment trusts.

"Now, Mr. Marston," demanded Schenker, "if the public puts $15,000,000 in a corporation and insiders only put in $10,000,000, don't you think the public is entitled to a 15-to-10 ratio of representation in the management of the company's affairs?"

"Well, uh, er . . . it would be unusual," Marston replied, smiling.

water highway was the Holland Tube connecting Manhattan and New Jersey. England usurped the honor by opening a highway tunnel under the River Mersey and connecting the cities of Liverpool and Birkhead. America may reclaim it by the completion of a second tube under the North River at New York.

Everywhere in the United States there are new demands that tax the capacity of the largest tunnels and longest bridges. Today millions of dollars are going into the construction of gigantic spans over the Mississippi River at New Orleans, over the Golden Gate at San Francisco and over the Hudson River at New York. Elsewhere monumental spans are rising above the skylines and horizons. And still there is congestion wherever the highways run into a river.

Traffic, especially a growing traffic, costs a nation money, but public works mean business and work and everything done to speed up traffic speeds up business.

CHAPTER 15

IN THE midst of her double shift for Jean's sake, the notion had come to Gay, to have tea at Tabbs'. She wasn't particularly hungry; any little nibble of food would be enough. And it would be such fun to see what Tabbs' was like. She'd heard several guests at the Pontchartrain speak of it. Peggy Pennell had given a lunch here a few days ago. And now here she was, Gay Elwell, just as grand as any of them!

She sat back and looked around. It was pretty—not garish and startling like Rose Heath, but daintier. All maple, and green-flowered chintz, and sparkling glass. Then Gay noticed a man coming across the room toward her, with a broad smile on his ugly, clever face. As he reached the table, she recognized him. He was Mark Vance, the artist whom she'd met at the Wilson dinner party.

that evening when Johnny Wilson had you up to dinner."

He chuckled. "Remember all my lovely speeches about your New York sophistication? And by the way, it gave me a great kick, the way you mowed the boys down. I bet you made some heavy dates that night—and later."

Gay lowered her eyes. "One or two."

"The little aviator boy?"

"Maybe."

"And how about our engineer friend? You certainly knocked him for a loop!"

Gay's smile vanished. "You mean Mr. Adams? He doesn't like me at all."

"The dickens you say. Why, he was the hardest hit of all. Couldn't take his eyes off you!"

"Oh, no. You're wrong there, Mr. Vance."

But the artist's words brought a quick thrill. Did Wayne really like her? If he did, then perhaps she needn't have that horrible feeling of embarrassment—that dreadful shame at having kissed him the other night at Rose Heath, out by the duck pond.

She hated to remember that incident, so completely surprising to herself, as it must have been to Wayne, also. What could he have thought of her? If only he'd said it happened! But no, he had simply looked at her in total amazement, and then, in silence, they had returned to the dining room. After that, for the brief remainder of the evening, they hadn't had another moment alone together.

"So that's all set."

Gay directed her attention to her companion across the table. "I beg your pardon," she cried, contritely. "I'm afraid I wasn't listening."

Mark Vance grinned good-naturedly. "I'm your future boss, young lady. You'd better snap to it, when I speak. I said, it's all settled. You're to pose for me at my studio, commencing next week sometime. I'll let you know when I need you. Let me have your telephone number, while I think of it."

Gay was watching Mark scrawl her address on a card when a familiar voice sounded in her ears. She looked up to see Wayne Adams standing beside their table.

"Hello, Mark," he was saying. "Does your wife know about these goings-on?"

The artist rose, hand extended. "Well, for Pete's sake. Hello. Ad. Where'd you drop from? You know Miss Elwell, of course?"

"Rather," Wayne smiled at Gay, while he pulled a chair from an adjacent table. "Sit down, Mark. I happened to be passing, and when I looked in and saw you having tea with my girl—"

"Your girl? How do you get that way? You haven't a chance with this woman. I've got her dated up so far ahead, she won't have a minute for you other boys. Isn't that right, Gay?"

Gay affected a nonchalance she was far from feeling. She propped her chin on her hand, and glanced from one to the other.

"You're both so nice," she declared sweetly, "it's hard to choose between you."

"Take me," Wayne insisted. "This Mark Vance isn't worth your while. Look at him! Hair getting thin on top. Ugly as a mud fence. Married!"

"But he's an artist," Gay argued. "That's so romantic. He has a studio. And all my life I've wanted to see a real studio, with tiger rugs on the floor, and Russian samovars, and paintings—"

Wayne interrupted. "I'll bet you $50 to a lead nickel, he doesn't even know what a samovar is. And for that matter, the apartment I've just leased has more samovars and tiger rugs than you could shake a stick at." His voice deepened into sarcasm. "You really ought to come over some time."

Vance gulped down the last of his coffee.

"Look here, you two, this has been a lot of fun, but I must be on my way. Hate to seem rude—" He grabbed up the checks for his own and Gay's food, and reached for his hat.

Gay protested. "Please leave my check. There's no reason why you should pay it."

"Be yourself, child." The artist bent on her his pleasant smile. "Too bad if I can't buy a cup of tea for a pretty girl once in a while. So long!"

Gay was secretly amused to see the expression of blank surprise on Wayne's face, as the other man departed. It was so obvious that he'd thought she and Mark had come in to Tabbs' together. But she said nothing.

"Mark's a fine chap," Wayne commented. "I met him several years ago in New York, and it was nice to run into him again, here in Detroit."

"He's a lamb," Gay agreed. "And his wife seems charming, too."

For several moments they discussed the Vances, talking quickly to overcome the shyness that had arisen when they found themselves alone. Both were remembering the last time together: the quaint bridge over the duck pond, the drunken stranger, and that breathless moment when Gay had walked into Wayne's arms and given herself up completely to his kiss.

The tea room was almost empty, by now. Nearly everyone had left, and only a few people remained sitting at the small maple tables.

A haze of cigarette smoke drifted through the quiet air. Up on the balcony, a photograph was playing, very softly, the plaintive "Mood Indigo" of Duke Ellington's orchestra. Tea hour was over, and the dinner crowd had not yet arrived.

There was something enchanting about this quiet intimacy: the purple dusk outside, the soft-shaded lights and haunting music within.

"That excitement, the other evening," Wayne commenced, abruptly. "It was all, well—rather startling, wasn't it? That drunk coming up to us and all the rest. I didn't get a chance to tell you how sorry I was, that you couldn't accept my invitation for tonight. Funny, I should run into you here. When I saw you with Mark, I thought perhaps he was the big heart interest, for whom you'd turned me down."

He paused, as the waitress approached their table and offered a menu.

"Want something more, Gay? I believe I'll just have coffee—I'm due for dinner at the Pontchartrain, in a little while."

When the waitress had left, he resumed, "My house-warming party is called off, for the time being. Most of the people I wanted to invite had already planned a dinner dance for Miss Randolph, for tonight. She sails for Paris, Saturday."

"I knew that," Gay nodded. "I've been asked to this dinner, but I could easily get out of it. Look here, Gay. Why can't we both play hooky from our respective dates, and have dinner together, just the two of us? Grace Larrimore and I discovered a little place over in Canada, the other night, where they have a not-too-bad orchestra. How about it?"

She hesitated.

Dinner and dancing with Wayne—this new, charming, friendly Wayne; so human, now that he'd dropped his tiresome armor of reserve and sarcasm. What fun it would be!

Then she shook her head in regretful decision. She couldn't break her promise to Jean.

"I'm sorry," she told Wayne. "Not tonight."

LEMKE'S POWER TO HARM

NO third party Presidential candidate ever won an election in this country. Nobody with a scintilla of political-mindedness expects Mr. Lemke to do it. His power to injure the chances, however, of either of the major party candidates is something to which the leaders are giving careful thought. Republicans and Democrats each affect to believe Lemke will pull more votes from the other side. The truth is, they do not know.

Mr. Lemke's ability to harm, whatever it may be, will be registered far more by his popular vote, the vote he takes away from Roosevelt and Landon in respective states, than by any electoral vote he may manage to pick up. The biggest popular vote ever obtained by a minority party candidate was that of Theodore Roosevelt as a Progressive in 1912. It was 27.4 per cent of the vote cast and totaled 4,119,507. President Taft that year 23.2 per cent and 3,484,956 votes. They together exceeded Woodrow Wilson's vote of 6,293,019 by more than 1,300,000, but Roosevelt got only eighty-eight electoral votes and Taft but eight to 435 for Wilson, who received 41.2 per cent of the popular vote.

Back in 1924 the late Robert M. La Follette, father of the present senator, got one vote out of every six cast in the election, but he carried only one state, his own, Wisconsin. There have been parties like the Socialists and the Prohibitionists that have competed in elections year after year and never had a single electoral vote.

Because Lemke has swallowed the Townsend $200-a-month old age pension plan hook, bait and sinker, and will have the formal indorsement of Father Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice at its convention, also in Cleveland, his vote may cut sharply across both major party lines. Townsend's claim of 5,000,000 members, with control of four times that many votes, can be set down as too fantastic for words. In the doubtful column, too, is the estimate of anywhere from 2,000,000 to 9,000,000 non-dues paying members in the Coughlin organization. But the potential voting strength of these groups, if they stick to their leaders, and of Rev. Gerald K. Smith's share-the-wealth outfit is not to be sneezed at.

CROSSING STREAMS

COLONIAL AMERICA journey on foot or horseback and had little use for bridges, so built few. It was the Conestoga wagon, which for a generation or two carried the country's commerce where there were no waterways, that started the nation in the bridge-building business, and it is the automobile which keeps the country continually on the endless job of building bridges and digging tunnels, the modern substitute for bridges.

HAMILTON TOLD TO ORGANIZE

WASHINGTON — When vivacious John Hamilton came to Washington just after being made Chairman of the Republican National Committee, he outlined to sagacious Senator McNary of Oregon an elaborate campaign in which he, personally, would speak in every state in the Union. McNary listened carefully, finally said: "But don't forget, John, you're not the candidate."

Now, according to Republican leaders returning from Topeka, this advice has been taken up by the Landon "kitchen cabinet." They have put a muffler on Hamilton's loquacity.

Landon's kitchen cabinet consists of Roy Roberts, managing editor of The Kansas City Star; Oscar Stauffer, college classmate and Kansas newspaper owner; Federal Judge George T. McDermott; and Lacey Haynes, Kansas correspondent of The Kansas City Star.

According to returning GOP chiefs, these intimate advisers held a counsil of war the day after the acceptance speech. Hamilton was present.

During this meeting Hamilton was informed, in a tactful but firm manner, that he was doing too much orating, and that it was the unanimous opinion of the group he could be more effective by concentrating on organization.

Hamilton readily accepted this advice, agreed to do less stump spieling.

Hunter S. Marston, elegant ex-vice president of Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, was being interrogated by David Schenker, government counsel in the Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation of investment trusts.

"Now, Mr. Marston," demanded Schenker, "if the public puts $15,000,000 in a corporation and insiders only put in $10,000,000, don't you think the public is entitled to a 15-to-10 ratio of representation in the management of the company's affairs?" "Well, uh, er . . . it would be unusual," Marston replied, smiling.

water highway was the Holland Tube connecting Manhattan and New Jersey. England usurped the honor by opening a highway tunnel under the River Mersey and connecting the cities of Liverpool and Birkhead. America may reclaim it by the completion of a second tube under the North River at New York.

Everywhere in the United States there are new demands that tax the capacity of the largest tunnels and longest bridges. Today millions of dollars are going into the construction of gigantic spans over the Mississippi River at New Orleans, over the Golden Gate at San Francisco and over the Hudson River at New York. Elsewhere monumental spans are rising above the skylines and horizons. And still there is congestion wherever the highways run into a river.

Traffic, especially a growing traffic, costs a nation money, but public works mean business and work and everything done to speed up traffic speeds up business.

Gay Elwell, check girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she fills in at a dinner party at the request of Dr. Wilson, a club member. One of them is Breck Carter. Gay has a date with him but leaves him in a huff when he becomes intoxicated and too attentive. Gay is attracted by Wayne Adams but he has shown little interest in her. She goes to the opening of a new night club with Christian Scott, elderly millionaire. At Rose Heath Gay meets Wayne Adams and they stroll on the terrace for a talk. Gay is thrilled when Wayne kisses her. The next day she goes out for supper between double shifts at the checkroom.

CHAPTER 15

IN THE midst of her double shift for Jean's sake, the notion had come to Gay, to have tea at Tabb's. She wasn't particularly hungry; any little nibble of food would be enough. And it would be such fun to see what Tabb's was like. She'd heard several guests at the Pontchartrain speak of it. Peggy Pennell had given a lunch here a few days ago. And now here she was, Gay Elwell, just as grand as any of them!

She sat back and looked around. It was pretty—not garish and startling like Rose Heath, but daintier. All maple, and green-floored chintz, and sparkling glass. Then Gay noticed a man coming across the room toward her, with a broad smile on his ugly, clever face. As he reached the table, she recognized him. He was Mark Vance, the artist whom she'd met at the Wilson dinner party.

"Hello, Miss Elwell. Mind if I sit with you?"

Without waiting for an answer, he swung round to the head waitress. "Set another place here, will you?" He dragged up a chair and lounged into it, as the waitress appeared, bringing Gay's order of toasts.

"What will you have, sir?" "Scrambled eggs. Sausages. And coffee." He spoke to Gay. "You won't mind if I eat and run? I've been working hard all day, and I'm just grabbing a bite. Dinner engagement at eight."

He lit a cigarette. "Some millionaire grocer wants his wife's portrait painted. At least, my wife has decided that he wants it done, and tonight is the night she makes up his mind for him." He laughed and winked. "My wife's my business manager!"

Gay smiled across the little table. "Your wife must be clever." "She is. Charlotte's darn clever." He broke off suddenly. "Lord, but your head and throat are well modeled. How'd you like to pose for me, some day?"

"I don't see how I could, Mr. Vance. My job as check girl takes most of my time."

"Sure. I know all about that. But after hours—" Vance studied her face. "Look here, Miss Elwell. I've just signed a contract to illustrate a short story for the 'Metropolis.' From what little I've read so far, the heroine's exactly your type. Young, blonde, fairly intelligent. The more I look at you, the more I want you for those illustrations. How about it?"

Gay was much intrigued. "I'd be awfully glad to earn some extra money. But I haven't had any experience, posing. And I could only come when my regular work at the club was finished. If that would do—"

"Suits me fine." The waitress had come back, bringing Vance's order, and he commenced eating. Between mouthfuls, he told Gay something of a model's work, and the pay she'd receive.

"Ordinarily, I wouldn't consider an amateur, but you're naturally graceful and you seem bright enough in the head. I watched you that evening when Johnny Wilson had you up to dinner." He chuckled. "Remember all my lovely speeches about your New York sophistication? And by the way, it gave me a great kick, the way you mowed the boys down. I'll bet you made some heavy dates that night—and later?"

After that, for the brief remainder of the evening, they hadn't had another moment alone together.

"So that's all set."

Gay directed her attention to her companion across the table.

"I beg your pardon," she cried, contritely. "I'm afraid I wasn't listening."

Mark Vance grinned good-naturedly. "I'm your future boss, young lady. You'd better snap to it, and I speak. I said, it's all settled. You're to pose for me at my studio, commencing next week sometime. I'll let you know when I need you. Let me have your telephone number, while I think of it."

Gay was watching Mark scrawl her address on a card when a familiar voice sounded in her ears. She looked up to see Wayne Adams standing beside their table. "Hello, Mark," he was saying. "Does your wife know about these goings-on?"

The artist rose, hand extended. "Well, for Pete's sake. Hello, you. Where'd you drop from? You know Miss Elwell, of course?"

"Rather," Wayne smiled at Gay, while he pulled a chair from an adjacent table. "Sit down, Mark. I happened to be passing, and when I looked in and saw you having tea with my girl—"

"Your girl? How do you get that way? You haven't a chance with this woman. I've got her dated up so far ahead, she won't have a minute for you other boys. Isn't that right, Gay?"

Gay affected a nonchalance she was far from feeling. She propped her chin on her hand, and glanced from one to the other.

"You're both so nice," she declared, sweetly, "it's hard to choose between you."

"Take me," Wayne insisted. "This Mark Vance isn't worth your while. Look at him! Hair getting thin on top. Ugly as a mud fence. Married!"

"But he's an artist," Gay argued. "That's so romantic. He has a studio, too. And all my life I've wanted to see a real studio, with tiger rugs on the floor, and Russian samovars, and paintings—"

Wayne interrupted, "I'll bet you $50 to a lead nickel, he doesn't even know what a samovar is. And for that matter, the apartment I've just leased has more samovars and tiger rugs than you could shake a stick at." His voice deepened into sarcasm. "You really ought to come over some time."

Vance gulped down the last of his coffee.

"Look here, you two, this has been a lot of fun, but I must be on my way. Hate to seem rude—" He grabbed up the checks for his own and Gay's food, and reached for his hat.

Gay protested. "Please leave my check. There's no reason why you should pay it."

"Be yourself, child." The artist bent on her his pleasant smile. "Too bad if I can't buy a cup of tea for a pretty girl once in a while. So long!"

Gay was secretly amused to see the expression of blank surprise on Wayne's face, as the other man departed. It was so obvious that he'd thought she and Mark had come in to Tabb's together. But she said nothing.

"Mark's a fine chap," Wayne commented. "I met him several years ago in New York, and it was nice to run into him again, here in Detroit."

"He's a lamb," Gay agreed. "And his wife seems charming, too."

For several moments they discussed the Vances, talking quickly to overcome the shyness that had arisen when they found themselves alone. Both were remembering the last time together: the quaint bridge over the duck pond, the drunken stranger, and that breathless moment when Gay had walked into Wayne's arms and given herself up completely to his kiss.

The tea room was almost empty, by now. Nearly everyone had left, and only a few people remained sitting at the small maple tables. A haze of cigaret smoke drifted through the quiet air. Up on the balcony, a phonograph was playing, very softly, the plaintive "Mood Indigo" of Duke Ellington's orchestra. Tea hour was over, and the dinner crowd had not yet arrived.

There was something enchanting about this quiet intimacy: the purple dusk outside, the soft-shaded lights and haunting music within.

"That excitement, the other evening," Wayne commenced, abruptly. "It was all so well—rather startling, wasn't it? That drunk coming up to us, and all the rest. I didn't get a chance to tell you how sorry I was, that you couldn't accept my invitation for tonight. Funny, I should run into you here. When I saw you with Mark, I thought perhaps he was the big heart interest, for whom you'd turned me down."

He paused, as the waitress approached their table and offered a menu.

"Want something more, Gay? I believe I'll just have coffee—I'm due for dinner at the Pontchartrain, in a little while."

When the waitress had left, he resumed. "My house-warming party is called off, for the time being. Most of the people I wanted to invite had already planned a dinner dance for Miss Randolph, for tonight. She sails for Paris, Saturday."

"I knew that," Gay nodded. "I've been asked to this dinner, but I could easily get out of it. Look here, Gay. Why can't we both play hooky from our respective dates, and have dinner together, just the two of us? Grace Larrimore and I discovered a little place over in Canada, the other night, where they have a not-too-bad orchestra. How about it?"

She hesitated. Dinner and dancing with Wayne—this new, charming, friendly Wayne; so human, now that he'd dropped his tiresome armor of reserve and sarcasm. What fun it would be!

Then she shook her head in regretful decision. She couldn't break her promise to Jean.

"I'm sorry," she told Wayne. "Not tonight."

Eye Infection Picked Up in Swimming Pool

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. SWIMMING POOLS are made quite safe by sanitary regulations which in most states are compulsory and prescribed by statute. A certain number of gallons of water per hour is run in fresh (400 gallons per bather is the ideal), and provisions are made for an antiseptic to keep down the number of germs to the lowest possible count. Chlorine is the one usually used, and it also destroys organic matter such as secretions from the nose, etc.

With these precautions, swimming pools have lost much of their old reproach. I heard at a country club someone say the swimming pool was built by subscriptions from the nose and throat men. That is unkind and no longer necessary.

But having reported so favorably, we have to add that there are some infections which are still picked up in swimming pools. Recently a unique form of conjunctivitis, or pink eye, has been reported. Unique in that it is apparently picked up only in swimming pool infection. It is not like an ordinary conjunctivitis at all. The eye gets red, but does not secrete any pus, as is the case with the ordinary pink eye. Nor are the ordinary germs which are associated with pink eye present. Instead, when a swab is made of the lid and stained, inclusion bodies are found in the cells. These inclusion bodies have been associated with the filterable virus group of diseases, and this swimming pool conjunctivitis appears to belong to that category. It is quite stubborn, lasting about two or three weeks. It does not yield readily to ordinary treatment, but clears up with 2 per cent guanine ointment.

Not Serious It is not, however, serious, and leaves no permanent damage in the eye.

The swimming pool is such a splendid health institution that it is well that we can say we have conquered its possible dangers. Swimming is one of the best forms of exercise. All the muscles are brought into play and it is exhilarating. In swimming we exercise far more than we realize, for we do not get heated and our bodies are supported by the water.

"Swimming is about the only form of exercise that can be practiced in hot weather without danger of overheating the body," says Roseman, in his text book on hygiene.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

OLYMPIC STADIUM, BERLIN, Aug. 6.—(UP)—America's wing-footed 400-meter runners won their trial heats with consummate ease today and the hop, step and jump hopes of the United States soared with the qualification of all of its three entrants.

Archie Williams, the Oakland, Calif., flash who held the world record of 46.1 seconds for the 400 meters, led the American qualifiers with 47.8. But so obvious was his complete mastery of the foreign sprint in his heat that the throng quivering in raw, windy weather, gave him generous applause. He was at least 15 feet ahead of William Fritz of Canada and Gunnar Christensen, who also qualified for the quarterfinal to be run later today.

Jimmy Lu Valle of Los Angeles also made a show of the field. The fiery negro was so far ahead in the sprint that he turned almost completely around to see where his competition was. Then he merely trotted to the tape, winner by seven feet in 49.1. Juan Carlos Anderson of Argentina and Zoltan Palfi of Hungary were the other qualifiers.

Harold Smallwood of Ventura, Cal., had the hardest race of the Americans but he kept well within himself and was content to lead through Nelson Simon of Canada to the tape by five feet in 49 seconds. Josef Vadas of Hungary was third. Smallwood, who was stricken with an attack of appendicitis aboard, led from the start. As the California trio triumphed

Brooklyn at Philadelphia.

In the tests of the 400 meters, so three youths from Louisiana came through in the Hop-Step-Jump. They were Billy Brown, Baker, La. schoolboy, Roland Romero of Welsh, La. and Dudley Wilkins of Crowley, La. All three exceeded the qualifying mark of 45 feet 11 13-64 inches and were among 25 who will compete later today in the finals.

To Boost Score

Although the American chances of a victory in this event were considered slim, the qualification of the three candidates led to the expectation the United States would increase its point score with at least one or two places among the first six. But formidable opposition was promised by Jack Metcalfe of Australia, and Kenichi Oshima of Japan who have the unofficial world records of 51 feet, 9 1/2, and 51 feet 10 1/2 inches. Long of Germany, second in the broad jump, and Rajasaari of Finland are also prospective placers.

When the 400 meters runners were called a stiff wind whipped the flags of the stadium straight out from their staffs. Spectators who had come without coats quickly regretted it.

Close Heat

A closer heat was the second, in which Georges Henry of France crossed the line three feet ahead of Karel Klenyich of Czechoslovakia. The highly-touted Dennis Shore of South Africa was a surprising third, 7-10 of a second behind the leader. Some critics have installed Shore as one of the favorites for the title.

Arthur Godfrey Brown of Great Britain checked off 48.8 to take the third heat, his margin of victory being 6 1/2 feet. The versatile Ario Lanza of Italy, who took second in the 800 meters, was second, with Adolf Metzner of Germany a slow third.

Herman Blazejak of Germany was an impressive winner in the sixth heat, leading Godfrey Lionel Rumpel of Great Britain by 19 feet in the good time of 47.9. Borje Strandvaal of Finland was third.

A bare two feet separated Pierre Skawinski of France from the second place Karl Von Wachenfeldt of Sweden in the eighth heat. Skawinski's time was 48.9. Rudolph Klupsch of Germany was third.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA
Swing is King in the gay Paramount musical of flying feet, "Three Cheers for Love," coming Friday and Saturday to the Cliftona theatre. The picture features Robert Cummings and Eleanor Whitney, "fastest tap dancer in the world," in leading roles, and presents a list of impressive dancing and acting talent.

The story is one of a pep-filled attractive girl, Eleanor, who is the daughter of a Hollywood movie producer, John Halliday. Her stepmother, Veda Ann Borg, believes that Eleanor's hopping around the studio in slacks is not aiding her social standing; she arranges to send the girl to a finishing school.

About This And That In Many Sports

Bicycle Races

Bicycle races for boys and girls of the city are being planned for Saturday on the Smith track, east of the city. The starting time is 3 o'clock. Three races will be conducted, one of one-half mile for entrants under 12 years of age; a second of two miles with a 14 age limit and the third of five miles with anyone eligible.

Many Stay at Home

Failure of more of the Pickaway Country Club's good golfers to make the trip resulted in a 17-31 defeat at Washington C. H. Wednesday afternoon. Claude Kraft, matched against the tough Mose Coffman, was the only local man to make a clean sweep. After all these inter-city matches are conducted more for fellowship than for results, anyway. Everyone reported a good time.

Jarrett in Berlin

Art Jarrett is in Berlin and ready to raise plenty of Hail Columbia about his wife being kicked off the swimming team. Mr. Jarrett, who sings and wields a baton in front of an orchestra, had better confine his activities to his music. Eleanor is off the team and she is going to remain off, regardless of Mr. Jarrett.

Parmelee in Form

Leroy Parmelee came back Wednesday to pitch some sterling ball, and help in putting the Cardinals a little farther ahead of the Cubs. Big Bud, who has been in and out since early in the season, blasted the Cub batters back with five hits. His return to form is a boon to the chances of the Cardinals.

Owens Aids Snyder

Jesse Owens' great showing in Berlin is real vindication of his coach, Larry Snyder. Lawrence Robertson, Olympic mentor, believed Snyder knew little about how to bring the colored star to his best form. All Jesse did under Snyder was knock off three first places. He'd like to be on the relay team, too, but Olympic officials believe he has won enough glory.

tona presents Zane Grey's "The Arizona Raiders."

AT THE GRAND

"The Border Patrolman," starring George O'Brien with Polly Ann Young and Roy Mason, is the feature at the Grand theatre Friday and Saturday. The tenth chapter of "Flash Gordon" will be on the screen also.

Wea Ferrell seems unable to beat his old team, the Cleveland Indians, this year. The Tribe has taken the Boston star in four out of five games this season.

AMERICAN QUARTER MILERS QUALIFY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP AT BERLIN

WILLIAMS WINS EASY HEAT AND THROG CHEERS

Jimmy Lu Valle Also Makes Show of Contestants In His Trials

SMALLWOOD IS PUSHED Three Louisiana Youths Come Through to Finals in Hop, Step and Jump

OLYMPIC STADIUM, BERLIN, Aug. 6.—(UP)—America's wing-footed 400-meter runners won their trial heats with consummate ease today and the hop, step and jump hopes of the United States soared with the qualification of all of its three entrants.

Archie Williams, the Oakland, Calif., flash who held the world record of 46.1 seconds for the 400 meters, led the American qualifiers with 47.8. But so obvious was his complete mastery of the foreign talent in his heat that the throng shivering in raw, windy weather, gave him generous applause. He was at least 15 feet ahead of William Fritz of Canada and Gunnar Christensen, who also qualified for the quarterfinal to be run later today.

Lu Valle Easy Victor Jimmy Lu Valle of Los Angeles also made a show of the field. The wiry negro was so far ahead in the stretch that he turned almost completely around to see where his competition was. Then he merely trotted to the tape, winner by seven feet in 49.1. Juan Carlos Anderson of Argentina and Zoltan Zsival of Hungary were the other qualifiers.

Harold Smallwood of Ventura, Cal. had the hardest race of the Americans but he kept well within himself and was content to lead Marshall Nelson Simon of Canada to the tape by five feet in 49 seconds. Josef Vadas of Hungary was third. Smallwood, who was stricken with an attack of appendicitis on shipboard, led from the start. As the California trio triumphed

Kostelanetz' Program Receives "Medal Of Merit" For Versatility

KAY THOMPSON, HEATHERTON TO ASSIST MAESTRO

Brothers Remain Rivals in "Family"; Star of Air to Sing

One of the most entertaining musical programs on radio is that featuring Andre Kostelanetz, Ray Heatherton, Kay Thompson and a girl chorus. The program has been suitably termed "The best summer show on the air."

Kostelanetz is famous as an orchestra leader. He has been outstanding, but it is probable none of his musical organizations can equal that now performing under his baton.

Instead of operatic singers, who usually appear with the maestro, he has selected Miss Thompson and Mr. Heatherton, both of whom possess beautiful voices. The chorus of girls adds much to the show.

Last week the show was presented the "Medal of Merit" rating by Radio Guide, national broadcasting magazine.

"ONE MAN'S FAMILY"
"Clifford Evans Matters With Jack" is the title of the next chapter of One Man's Family to be broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network on Wednesday, August 12, at 7 p. m. (EST). Jack has been bragging about his successful courtship of Eva Mills and Clifford now threatens to get even with the younger boy for telling everybody that he has taken Eva away from Cliff.

Claudia has sent a radiogram to Nicky, her husband saying she is leaving England immediately for home and that she can explain everything about the scandal hint which appeared in one of the newspapers. Although very much upset over the gossip columnist's story Nicky is inclined to wait for an explanation before he passes judgment on Claudia.

This episode in the serial broadcast, which is written by Carlton Morse, also tells something about what other members of the Barbour family think of the Claudia-Nicky affair.

AIR QUEEN TO SING
Jessica Dragonette, voted Queen of the Air, will sing at the great Lakes Exposition on August 7.

Breaking a ten-year precedent, her sponsor will broadcast its regular evening concert on that date before 13,000 people gathered at Radioland in the Exposition. It will be the first time in more than 520 weekly concerts that the program will be broadcast outside its New York studios.

In tribute to the exposition, Rosario Bourdon, conductor of the orchestra, has composed a march entitled "Salute to Ohio," which will be played for the first time during the Cleveland broadcast.

CHECK OF CARS URGED

Engineer Declares Numerous
Local Autos Hog Space on Busy Saturdays

The ordinance committee of council including Julius Helwagen, chairman, Frank A. Marion and W. F. Baker, was ordered by President John C. Goeller, Wednesday evening, to dig up an old parking ordinance for study and possible revision and have it ready for presentation at the next meeting of the organization Aug. 19.

Goeller's action followed a lengthy discussion in which it was decided "something should be done about traffic."

The question was brought up when Vatter Courtright, attending the meeting as a WPA official, said figures that he and James Van S. Court street obtained during a few hours Saturday night, July 25. They toured every street in the uptown business area checking license tags on parked automobiles. They checked the cars to determine where the cars were from.

Auto Survey Conducted
Courtright's figures included 20 automobiles parked on all streets; 212 from rural Pickaway county; 55 belonging to merchants and their employees; 35 belonging to persons residing in the outskirts of the city; 57 owned by persons living within four blocks of the center of town; 30 from the county; 46 from Fairfield county; five from Franklin county; seven from Madison county; from Hocking county; 38 from other counties in central Ohio; 22 from cars, but counties not identified, and three from out of Ohio. Courtright suggested that council check automobiles in this fashion at two-hour intervals on a Saturday to determine how many persons park their cars in the morning and leave them during the entire day and evening. He believes the safety department could complete the task at an expense of not more than $15 to pay persons to make the check.

Idea Approved
Several councilmen approved the idea, and suggested it might be attempted. Councilman Frank Marion and Ben H. Gordon approved of the plan.

Councilman Tull M. Barnes declared he was in favor of an ordinance to regulate the parking law. Circleville doesn't enforce any of its existing traffic laws, though, so why should another be added," he said.

Parking Ban Hit
Uptown business houses that have appropriated parking spaces for themselves and have placed signs "Do Not Park" in front of their places of business were upbraided by Councilman Frank Baker for participating in a practice for which there is no law. This, too, will be ironed out if and when council approves an ordinance, he said.

At this point of the discussion, President Goeller told Mr. Helwagen to hunt the ordinance that was discussed a year ago but never acted on. It regulated the parking, but the limit had not been established when it was placed on a shelf never to be taken off.

"For years to come," says one of the current prophets, "We'll be working for J. P. Morgan and Barney Baruch." Well, at least we'll be working.

Balances in all city funds total $10,768.48, Ben H. Gordon, chairman of the finance committee, informed council Wednesday evening. The sums include: general, $3,173.90; library, $3,556.96; auto street repair, $2,450.52; gasoline tax, $1,290.75; hospital, $296.35.

Mayor W. J. Graham collected $86 in fines and $7 in licenses during July.

Max Stout, 17, employee of the Smith meat market, is unable to work as a result of cutting three tendons on his left hand in a meat slicing machine. His hand slipped while he was cutting cold meat. The accident happened Monday afternoon.

Councilman Frank Baker asked President John C. Goeller, Wednesday, for further time in the construction of additional water mains in several sections of the city. Several communities seek water service, but Baker has been unable to learn whether the Ohio Water Service Co. will follow council's recommendations concerning construction.

Several members of Circleville lodge No. 685, Fraternal Order of Eagles will go to Washington C. H. Sunday for a district meeting.

Dr. C. C. Watts, Circleville veterinarian, will participate in discussions concerning treatment of swine at the American Veterinary Medical Association convention in Columbus Aug. 11-14.

EIGHT DIE AS PLANE CRASHES

Missouri river. It is a sparsely settled agricultural district. The plane did not burn. Apparently it crashed nose down into a piece of pasture land.

Radio Fails

Carleton Putnam, president of the airline company, said the airport lost radio contact with the plane about five minutes after it took off.

"The operator called the plane repeatedly," he said, "and when it did not respond we called the Chicago airport and told them the plane was missing."

Farmers throughout that section of St. Louis county were called and finally a searching party organized, made up mostly of ground workers, mechanics and office men. They were deployed over an area of several acres and advanced on foot in the general direction the plane followed.

"After searching several hours we found the wreck," Putnam said. "The plane was not badly damaged. All occupants were dead. It was impossible to ascertain the cause of the accident."

Farmer Hears Crash

George Behlmann, owned the farm where the plane crashed. He told the United Press that he was in bed when he heard the plane overhead.

"The motor sounded very loud and suddenly stopped," he said. My wife said, 'that's funny; I wonder if it crashed.'

"It seemed to me that there was some sort of noise west of my home. I got dressed and went out to look around. Other people whom I met outside said the plane had crashed."

"It was very foggy and I couldn't see twenty feet ahead of me. Some people said the plane must be east of my house, so I went back to bed."

Behlmann said he got up early because he was due to take a load of corn to market.

"Shortly after leaving home," he said, "I saw a group of airport men around the plane. They had just found it in a field about a quarter of a mile from my house."

An airport employee, who was with the searching party, told the United Press that he found the two pilots and five of the passengers lying within a 50 foot area around the wrecked plane. The sixth passenger was in the cabin.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE TO CONDUCT SURVEY OF CITY'S PARKING PROBLEM

REGULATION OF LOCAL TRAFFIC CONTEMPLATED

One Hour Stops Advocaged as Attention Turns to Knotty Problem

CHECK OF CARS URGED

Engineer Declares Numerous Local Autos Hog Space on Busy Saturdays

The ordinance committee of council including Julius Helwag, chairman, Frank A. Marion and W. F. Baker, was ordered by President John C. Goeller, Wednesday evening, to dig up an old parking ordinance for study and possible revision and have it ready for presentation at the next meeting of the organization Aug. 19.

Goeller's action followed a lengthy discussion in which it was decided "something should be done about traffic."

The question was brought up when Vattier Courtright, attending the meeting as a WPA official, read figures that he and James Ryan, S. Court street obtained during a few hours Saturday night, July 25. They toured every street in the uptown business area checking license tags on parked automobiles. They checked the tags to determine where the cars were from.

Auto Survey Conducted
Courtright's figures included 520 automobiles parked on all streets; 212 from rural Pickaway county; 55 belonging to merchants and their employees; 35 belonging to persons residing in the outskirts of the city; 57 owned by persons living within four blocks of the center of town; 30 from Ross county; 46 from Fairfield county; five from Franklin county; seven from Madison county; 10 from Hocking county; 38 from other counties in central Ohio; 22 Ohio cars, but counties not identified, and three from out of Ohio.

Courtright suggested that council check automobiles in this fashion at two-hour intervals on a Saturday to determine how many persons park their cars in the morning and leave them during the entire day and evening. He believes the safety department could complete the task at an expense of not more than $15 to pay persons to make the check.

Idea Approved
Several councilmen approved the idea, and suggested it might be attempted. Councilman Frank Marion and Ben H. Gordon approved of the plan.

Councilman Tull M. Barnes declared he was in favor of an one hour parking law. Circleville doesn't enforce any of its existing traffic laws, though, so why should another be added," he said.

Parking Ban Hit
Uptown business houses that have appropriated parking spaces for themselves and have placed signs "Do Not Park" in front of their places of business were upbraided by Councilman Frank Baker for participating in a practice for which there is no law. This too, will be ironed out if and when council approves an ordinance, he said.

At this point of the discussion, President Goeller told Mr. Helwag to hunt the ordinance that was discussed a year ago but never acted on. It regulated the hours for parking, but the limit had not been established when it was placed on a shelf never to be taken off.

"For years to come," says one of the current prophets, "We'll be working for J. P. Morgan and Barney Baruch." Well, at least we'll be working.

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Thy children like olive plants round about thy table.—Psalm 128:3.

Balances in all city funds total $10,768.48, Ben H. Gordon, chairman of the finance committee, informed council Wednesday evening. The sums include: general, $3,173.90; library, $3,556.96; auto street repair, $2,450.52; gasoline tax, $1,290.75; hospital, $296.35.

Mayor W. J. Graham collected $86 in fines and $7 in licenses during July.

Max Stout, 17, employee of the Smith meat market, is unable to work as a result of cutting three tendons on his left hand in a meat slicing machine. His hand slipped while he was cutting cold meat. The accident happened Monday afternoon.

Councilman Frank Baker asked President John C. Goeller, Wednesday, for further time in the construction of additional water mains in several sections of the city. Several communities seek water service, but Baker has been unable to learn whether the Ohio Water Service Co. will follow council's recommendations concerning construction.

Several members of Circleville lodge No. 685, Fraternal Order of Eagles will go to Washington, D. C. Sunday for a district meeting.

Dr. C. C. Watts, Circleville veterinarian, will participate in discussions concerning treatment of swine at the American Veterinary Medical Association convention in Columbus Aug. 11-14.

Ned Thacher, of near Fox Post-office, has been re-elected president of the Rainbow Protective Assn. Other officers are Ed Dowden, vice president; Herbert Melvin, secretary; W. H. Evans, guard; George Grubb, captain; Frank Clark, George Shook and Wayne Hoover, trustees; Gardner Jones, delegate; Gardner Jones, treasurer.

The Retail Merchants Assn. will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms to plan a promotion campaign for August, and to discuss plans for September's activity.

NEGLECT ALLEGED

Neglect of duty is charged in the divorce petition of Estella May Piatt of Perry township filed in common pleas court against Donald Piatt of Madison Mills, Fayette county.

Piatt, who married her in Greenup, Ky., Dec. 2, 1935, left her July 16, the plaintiff charges. She asks her maiden name of Estella Mae Keller be restored.

TWO PROJECTS ARE STARTED BY PICKAWAY W. P. A.

Two projects under W. P. A. were started in Pickaway county Wednesday afternoon. Six workmen were assigned to the Hargus creek project under Roy Harden, superintendent. Several others started to build scaffolds in the sheriff's office of the courthouse preparatory to a cleaning program.

The Hargus creek project includes a new bridge and relocation of the road. The work is expected to continue until the first of the year.

The courthouse project will give 40 persons work for four months with an extensive cleaning and decorating program outlined.

SLOT MACHINES FADE FOLLOWING SHERIFF'S EDICT

A general edict of slot machines and similar gaming devices has taken place in Pickaway county this week following action of Sheriff Charles Radcliff in removing eight during the last week-end.

Reports have reached the sheriff's office that all merchants having any kind of device have been removing them rather than let them fall into the hands of the sheriff or his deputies.

The caste system of India was in existence as early as 1,200 B. C. There are no authentic records of its origin.
